Training in Leadership and Change Management at Caucasus University

Under the frame of the TEMPUS Project: LAMANCHE: Leading and Managing Change in Higher Education Caucasus University is planning a three day training retreat in “Leadership and Change Management” on February 15- 17, 2014.

Training is designed for all levels of CU management.

Every day, a leader with a good idea fails at change management. Most fail because they can't get beyond vision. Successful leaders need to take a holistic approach to organizational change: working top-down to influence stakeholders and mobilize support, and bottom-up to keep projects and people moving forward.

Organizations today face a myriad of potential challenges. ‘Leading Change’ is a critical skill in today's dynamic environment. This intensive training course provides both the critical skills and a framework for the successful transformation in the organizations mainly in Higher Education Institutions.

This training course will enable delegates to:

- Understand how to apply different styles of leadership during the change.
- Recognize the important role that people play in making business transformation successful.
- Discuss the fundamental challenges in getting people to change and for that change to be sustained.
- Learn about resistance to change, its importance and how to overcome and manage it successfully.
- Understand and be able to apply the key steps required to successfully lead change.

Your presence is mandatory.
